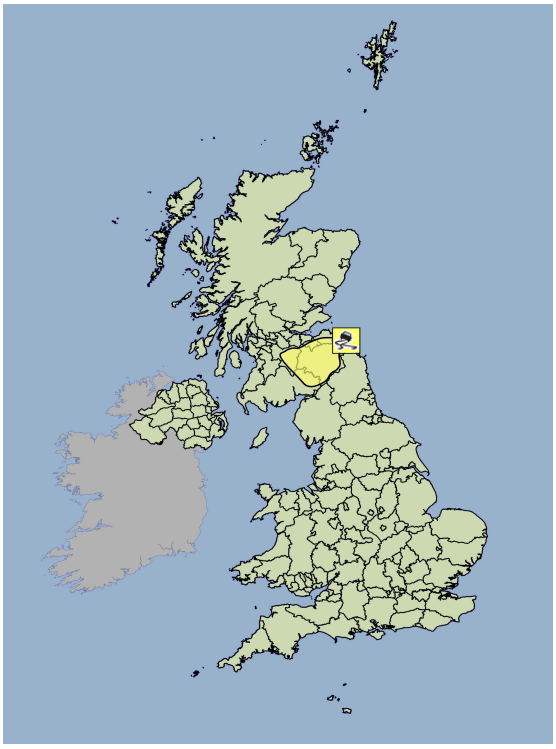
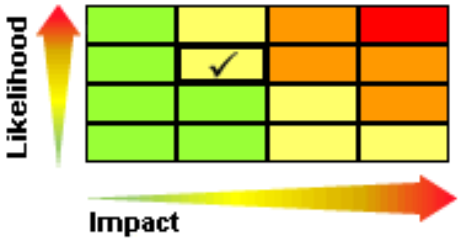
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Following sleet and wet snow during Saturday evening across parts of the Borders, roads have been left cold and wet with some localised slushy snowfalls. As skies tend to clear roads will dip below freezing widely within the warning area, leading to a risk of icy stretches. In addition, further overnight showers could lead to salt wash-off where roads have been treated, whilst some fresh accumulations of snow are possible, mainly on ground above 200m.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Ice

Valid from 23:00 on Sat, 21st Dec 2013 until 10:00 on Sun, 22nd Dec 2013

Clearing skies following this evening's wintry showers have allowed road temperatures to fall quickly. As the night progresses temperatures are likely to fall below freezing within the warning area, leading to a risk of icy stretches.

The public should be aware of the risk of disruption to travel during Saturday night and into Sunday morning.
